The KlaasKids Foundation's Do Not Track tool, Cocoon for KlaasKids, protects kids' privacy online.

Launch of Twitter's video-sharing app, Vine, hampered by privacy concerns.

US Supreme Court rules that ACLU does not have the legal standing to challenge the FISA Amendments Act, which allows warrantless surveillance.

US Senate holds hearing on the privacy risks of domestic drone use.

US Supreme Court rules that DNA may be taken after an arrest.

Tampa woman who brought down David Petraeus sues federal officials for violating her privacy.

Chelsea Manning found guilty of espionage.

FBI shuts down Bitcoin marketplace Silk Road.

The NSA spying program called PRISM revealed by Edward Snowden.

Google agrees to pay $7 million to settle a Wi-Fi privacy suit.

Advances in facial-scanning project Biometric Optical Surveillance System raise privacy concerns.

Relatives of cell-donor Henrietta Lacks, the subject of bestseller The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks, forge historic privacy agreement with the NIH.

Google launches new privacy policy that allows user data in advertisements.

US 9th Circuit Court of Appeals upholds the decision that Google violated the federal Wiretap Act by accessing unencrypted Wi-Fi networks.

Passenger on train overhears and live-tweets former NSA director Michael Hayden's private conversation.

Study reveals young users updating their privacy settings, the so-called "Edward Snowden effect."

Facebook allows users' info to be used in ads.

Google Glass wearer asked to leave Seattle restaurant.

Amazon announces it will use drones to deliver packages; lawmakers fret about privacy concerns.

Washington Post reports that the NSA inadvertently tracks the locations of nearly 5 billion cellphones every day.

Halle Berry succeeds in campaign to protect the privacy of her children's social media profiles.

Google Glass wearer sues an Illinois town for violating her privacy.

Forbes reports that images on Snapchat (the messaging app) don't "disappear" but can actually be recovered.

Google announces that it will begin shipment of Google Glass to "Glass Explorers."

AOL, Apple, Facebook, Google, LinkedIn, Microsoft, Twitter and Yahoo unite to demand reform of US surveillance laws.

FBI found to have created virus that secretly activates a computer camera without the indicator light.

Advances in facial-scanning project Biometric Optical Surveillance System raise privacy concerns.

New York Times reports that German chancellor Angela Merkel was tapped by NSA PRISM.

Forbes reports that images on Snapchat (the messaging app) don't "disappear" but can actually be recovered.

Google announces that it will begin shipment of Google Glass to "Glass Explorers."